Dean's Message

It is my distinct pleasure to present the Amelia V. Gallucci-Cirio Library's FY25 Annual Report, a report that embodies the theme of President Donna Hodge's first year: "A Year of Service." The Library's accomplishments this year demonstrate an unwavering commitment to serving our students, faculty, and the institution as a whole. This spirit of service fuels our daily operations, placing student success at the core of every initiative. We championed student affordability through our expansive Open Educational Resources (OER) initiatives, which saved students thousands of dollars in textbook costs. We advanced the university's commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion, ensuring our services, collections and policies are evaluated through a DEI lens to promote equitable access to information. We expanded access to vital electronic information resources, ensuring every student has the tools needed to thrive.

A crucial part of our work involves shaping the future of learning, and our staff continues to explore the impact of artificial intelligence on research practices and library services. We also proudly led the important work to revise the university's Academic Integrity Policy and Procedures. With an eye on the future, we made the move into open access publishing and the creation of a faculty scholarship institutional repository.

This report is a testament to the Library staff's professionalism, agility, and fundamental belief in the power of service to transform lives. I am deeply grateful for their dedication, and we look forward to continuing as essential partners in advancing the university's mission in the years ahead.

Update on 2024-2027 Library Strategic Plan

Significant progress was made on implementing the Library's Strategic Plan; we highlight the following actions:

- The establishment of an institutional repository was explored, a hosting platform was selected and funding was secured through Academic Affairs. The institutional repository goes live in FY26.
- Open access publishing decisions were made including starting a PressBooks subscription with funding secured through Academic Affairs, and initiating open access journal publishing through a library Open Journal System (OJS) platform. The first journal will be published in FY26.
- Leading for Change policy equity audit training including all library personnel was conducted and policy reviews began. Work on diversifying the Children's and Young Adult Literature collections continued.
- Current library spaces were evaluated in a rigorous space exploration project resulting in a space consultant's analysis report and the securing of SUCCESS fund monies to purchase furniture to support all learners. In addition, a comprehensive building security review was conducted, resulting in actionable security improvement recommendations.
- A faculty portal "Services for Faculty" was created on the library website.

Information Literacy

Teaching & Learning

Over the past fiscal year, the Teaching Team advanced several key strategic initiatives aimed at strengthening our information literacy program and broadening its impact. A literature review was conducted on embedded librarianship and new strategies were piloted and measured in a graduate course. Findings from this pilot and literature review will be incorporated into a revised embedded librarianship program. In order to better evaluate and refine our teaching, the Teaching Team collected student artifacts from one-shot lessons to use in a pilot assessment program during July 2025. The teaching librarians continue to strengthen ties between the Library and the General Education program on the teaching of Information Literacy by working with the General Education Ambassador for Reading, Writing and Information Literacy to update the learning outcome database with teaching materials. Recognizing the evolving needs of our student body, librarians continue to update digital teaching materials to more effectively support online learners and graduate students, enhancing equitable access to library expertise and resources.

Information Literacy Instruction

The library's Information Literacy program is dedicated to preparing students to be information literate in our constantly evolving information age. In FY25, librarians led a total of 235 classes, workshops, and orientation sessions reaching 4,134 students across a wide array of disciplines. Librarians collaborated with faculty by teaching classes in every format: on-sync, online asynchronous, and in-person. In previous years, data was only disaggregated by synchronous or asynchronous instruction. For FY25, we split instruction into five distinct categories: synchronous instruction (in-person or online classes), asynchronous instruction (embedded librarian courses), orientation/tours, workshops, and Library Research 101 tutorial adoption.

- 146 synchronous classes were taught by librarians in person and/or online
- 25 asynchronous classes embedded a librarian in online courses
- 33 orientations and tours were conducted for first year students, international students, and faculty
- 11 workshops for students and faculty
- 20 courses adopted the online Library Research 101 tutorial series

First Year Experience Collaboration

The library's Teaching Team continued its years-long collaboration with Dr. Laura Garofoli (Psychological Sciences) at the First Year Experience Faculty Summer Institute. This institute was open to new and returning faculty teaching FYE in Fall 2025. Librarians worked with faculty to develop information literacy assignments designed to meet the information literacy learning outcomes for their FYE courses. The Library Research 101 tutorial series was assigned in 17 sections of FYE, 29 sections of FYE came to the library for an orientation session with a librarian and a tour of the library, and 48 classes were conducted by a librarian for this program.

Academic Innovation Fund Grant: Information Literacy Workshop for Faculty

In FY25, the Teaching Team developed and conducted a professional development workshop for faculty on teaching Information Literacy. Over the course of two days, the Teaching Team covered definitions of information literacy, scaffolding skills throughout curricula, barriers to skill development, and facilitated discussion on the impact of Generative AI. Ten faculty participants were supported with stipends for their participation and revision of research assignments through a University Academic Innovation Fund grant. Feedback from faculty participants was overwhelmingly positive:

- "I thought the program was well-organized and very helpful. It reinvigorated my interest in incorporating information literacy instruction, and assessment, into my classroom."
- "I also plan to discuss with people in my department about how to integrate IL more consistently across our classes."
- "You all did a fantastic job! I truly enjoyed the workshop and applaud you for the amazing work."

Faculty respondents to our exit survey all expressed interest in future workshops and a community of practice. This workshop not only strengthened faculty commitment to integrating information literacy into their courses but also sparked broader departmental conversations about embedding these essential skills more deeply and sustainably across the curriculum.

Research Help

Point of need individual research consultations are essential in fulfilling the library's mission of teaching information literacy and enabling users to locate, evaluate, and effectively use information. Librarians are available for drop-in research help at the Research Help Desk over 53 hours per week to support students and the entire university community in several ways including in-person, chat, email, and video conferencing. Librarians also make themselves available for research appointments to facilitate longer and more intensive consultations. In the past year, librarians and staff assisted users with 2,784 research and directional questions tallying 377 hours of direct assistance, of which 328 hours (86.9%) were spent in individual research consultations. Additionally, the 24/7 Global Reference Cooperative of librarians provided reference and research assistance to Fitchburg State students during the evenings and overnight hours expanding our services by 115 hours a week. In the past year, non-Fitchburg State librarians provided research and directional support for 273 Fitchburg State students through this service while Fitchburg State librarians have answered 100 research and directional questions for students around the world.

Artificial Intelligence

Artificial intelligence is transforming higher education by influencing, among other things, research methods, pedagogical practices, data analyses, information production, and information consumption. As a result, librarians are increasingly called upon to help students and faculty to understand, use, and think critically about AI technologies and their ethical impact on learning, research and society. Examples of work done by the library this year include:

- Instruction research classes on the use of artificial intelligence and ethics
- Instruction research classes on the use of artificial intelligence and ethics with a specific focus on academic integrity
- Instruction research classes on the critical evaluation of lesson plans generated by artificial intelligence systems
- One-on-one consultations with faculty about artificial intelligence use and academic integrity violations, mainly around hallucinated sources
- One-on-one consultations with faculty about artificial intelligence and strategies to better help students understand its place in the research process
- CTL event: Interrogating the Implicit Bias of AI: Teaching Educators to Use Critical Literacy to Complicate and Contextualize the Myths of Columbus, co-presented by Renée Fratantonio

Student Success Support

Student Athletes Study Hall

The Library continued its collaboration with TRIO, the Academic Coaching & Tutoring (ACT), and the Fitchburg State Athletics program in providing a student-athlete study hall program. For FY25 the program continued to focus on supporting the University's football team, which is the campus' largest sports program with approximately 50 student-athletes.

The football study hall ran twice a week from 3:30-4:30pm on Mondays and Wednesdays in the Library's Instruction Lab. All first year students as well as any students with a GPA below a 2.5 were required to attend both study hall sessions, but all players were encouraged to attend at least one session per week. Attendance was on average about 30 students per session, with attendance sometimes reaching over 40 students.

Aside from providing a regular quiet space for students to work, the study hall program seeks to provide student athletes point-of-need help with access to various student academic support services. These services include access to math and writing tutors from the ACT, one-on-one consultations with TRIO support services, and research help provided by the librarian in attendance, who conducted 19 research help interactions over the course of the academic year.

Currently the Library is working with Athletics and participating student support offices to expand this program to serve all student-athletes in an expanded study hall program for FY26.

Orientation

The Library continued to host new student orientation through First Year Experience (FYE) courses. All FYE faculty scheduled with the Library to host one of their class periods in the Library for the orientation. The Library hosted a total of 29 FYE classes for orientation sessions, which included a short introduction to the Library website, followed by a tour of several floors of the Library space. In partnership with the various student support offices located on the third floor of Hammond Hall, the orientation sessions ended with a visit to Hammond 3rd floor for a meet-and-greet with various student support office staff, including TRIO, Disability Services, the ACT, and Counseling Services.

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) Committee

Having set the stage in FY24, the DEI Committee initiated the process of performing a holistic review of Library policies and procedures using the Policy Review with an Equity Lens developed by Leading for Change. After an initial all-library staff review session in October 2024 to discuss the rubric, elect a policy to review, and practice applying sections of the rubric to the policy, the DEI Committee developed a procedure for continued review. Under this procedure, small functional groups meet to discuss the policy through the lens of one of the six sections of the rubric each month. Then, at the end of the month, all Library employees meet as a large group to discuss these evaluations. During large group discussions, the DEI Committee chair keeps running notes of both key assessments and ideas for policy or practice changes for the future that arose from the discussion. During AY2025, the Public Users/Visitors policy was reviewed, and is on-track to complete the review by August 2025. After the review, the policy will be revised, and a new policy will be chosen for review.

Additional DEI Projects

Children's Literature Collection

Work on diversifying the Children's and Young Adult Literature collections continued in FY25 after the successful implementation of a new collection development policy and an approval plan for diverse award winning children's books. Significant progress was made on reorganizing and labeling the collection to improve browsing and wayfinding. Once complete, students and other library users will be able to find diverse children's books more easily while browsing the shelves. The Library aims to complete the first reorganization phase by spring 2026.

Constitution Day 2024: Title IX and Gender Equity

At the request of Dr. Kisha Tracy, librarians developed a LibGuide to support the Fall 2024 Constitution Day programming on campus, highlighting the theme and events. This included featuring books from our collection on various topics related to Title IX and also written by the keynote speaker, C.L. Lindsay, III. It also featured key Supreme Court cases which set precedent interpreting Title IX. The guide provided important context for the Constitution Day programming and background information related to Title IX and its role in guaranteeing gender equity, particularly on college campuses.

Improving Access through OER

The library leads the university on open education initiatives and shares their expertise at the state level. As a member of the Massachusetts Open Education Resources Advisory Council, a Fitchburg State librarian chaired the state-wide Open Educational Resources Assessment committee and led the revision of the OER Assessment KPIs Implementation Guide which provides guidance to the Massachusetts public higher education institutions on collecting data and reporting progress on a broad set of OER metrics to key stakeholders at their institution and to the Massachusetts Department of Higher Education (DHE).

Fitchburg State librarians also present and share their OER expertise across the state and at national conferences. The Open and Affordable Education Committee, through the generous support from a university strategic funding initiative, was awarded $17,000 to continue advancing the use of OER across campus. Through the OER grants program in FY25, 12 faculty received stipends to adopt course materials that will be of no cost to their students. In addition, the committee also funded 10 faculty to participate in the faculty-led Open Pedagogy Community of Practice where faculty met to critically examine the ethical considerations and practical applications of AI-generated materials for classroom use.

Remixing Open Textbooks through an Equity Lens (ROTEL) Grant

Fitchburg State University was among a consortium of colleges that won a $1,300,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Education in 2021 to increase the number of free, open educational resources that are designed with a diversity, equity and inclusive lens. FY25 was the final year of the grant and overall 10 OER textbooks were written by Fitchburg State University faculty. In March 2025, a book launch celebration was held to celebrate the faculty authors who published books in FY25 and the Library hosted the ROTEL wrap-up celebration in May. The library was instrumental in receiving and administering the grant, and in supporting faculty in the book creation and publishing process.

Student Workers

Our Indispensable Student Workers

We offer a special thank you to our student workers who staffed the library this past year! Our 17 students work approximately 165 hours each week. Without them, we could not have kept the library open for 87.75 hours per week during the semester. We celebrated each graduating senior student worker by adding and dedicating a book of their choice in their honor to the library's collection.

Amelia V. Gallucci-Cirio Outstanding Student Employee Award

This award was established in 2021 to recognize students who consistently demonstrate professionalism and high standards of performance in the role of student library employee. Student workers provide quality customer service while assisting users with borrowing materials, booking study rooms, assisting with technology and printers, keeping the library collection in order, carrying out special projects, and many other tasks that are essential to the library's mission. This year's recipient is Mackenzie Dodge.

Mackenzie began working at the Library in the fall of 2023. She is majoring in Mathematics, minoring in Data Analytics and GIS. Mackenzie is active in the Mathematics Department, including acting as a student representative. She contributes to both the Public Services and Technical Services departments within the library. Mackenzie's contribution to the reorganization of the children and young adult collections has been crucial. Her speed, accuracy, motivation and communication skills in both departments has made her stand out as our best student employee. Mackenzie is a wonderful model and mentor to our student team. In recognition of Mackenzie's excellent service, the book The Starless Sea by Erin Morgenstern was dedicated in her honor to the Library's collection. Mackenzie will be graduating in December 2025.

Electronic Resources

Collecting for the 21st Century Learner

eBooks

The library continues to increase its access to eBooks. Seven years ago, the library offered access to 2,600 eBooks. Today the library offers access to over 530,000 eBooks. Through this collection, the library continues to meet its mission to more effectively serve its growing number of online students as well as its on-campus students. We saw a significant decline in eBook usage in FY25. This decline is partially related to the elimination of the availability of the ProQuest DDA eBook subscription.

Streaming Films

The library offers access to over 21,000 streaming videos, most of which are available on Kanopy. Use of Kanopy streaming film services increased to 4,339 plays (totaling 115,900 minutes of play time), up from 4,210 plays (108,854 minutes) last year.

Journals and Databases

The library subscribes to over 152,000 online journals through database packages and individual purchases. Students, faculty, and staff read over 192,000 scholarly journal, magazine, and newspaper articles in FY25. This represents a 15% increase over the last year. The number of databases available through the library is 228 (up from 203 in FY24). Usage of individual journals and databases are reviewed every year and items with high cost per use may be canceled. Twenty-seven journals were canceled last year because of low usage or they became available within a database. The review process allows for new resources to be added that better meet the needs of our students and faculty. Four new online journals were added.

The following databases were upgraded: OVID Nursing, IBISWorld and Statista. The databases PAIS Index and LGBTQ+ Source were added. The databases Daily Life Through History and Social Work Reference Center were canceled due to low usage.

Library Systems and Technology

Alma & Primo, Year 3

This year the library focused on assessing and refining the controlled digital learning (CDL) and digital collections components of Alma and the Rapido Interlibrary Loan system implemented last year. Ongoing assessment of the Alma system was conducted for staff workflow efficiencies and functionality for the library's Public Services and Technical Services departments, as well as implementing changes to the system's configuration. Continued specialized training was provided for staff. Development of new and revised documentation materials for Public Services, Tech Services, and Systems workflows as well as custom reports in the Alma Analytics module.

Based on feedback from library staff and users, the library focused on implementing changes to the front-end look and feel of Primo, our discovery layer, and improving its functionality.

Rapido Interlibrary Loan System

Since its implementation in January 2024, the library has continued to enhance and assess Rapido's impact and performance. With one full year of data, it is clear that Rapido has had a positive impact on the research efforts on campus. It allows us to retrieve materials from other institutions faster, partially due to increased automation. Approximately 80% of article or chapter requests are delivered digitally within 21 hours. The user-interface of Rapido, within the library catalog, has increased visibility of the interlibrary loan and document delivery services. University faculty, staff and students have shown an increased engagement with these services (23% increase from FY24 to FY25 and 69% increase from FY23 to FY25). Due to the success of Rapido, we were able to sunset the use of ILLiad software for interlibrary loan services, saving over $9,000 annually, without compromising service to the university community.

Archives and Special Collections

This year, we enhanced the JSTOR Community Collections platform in order to increase discoverability and use by providing a better experience for our users. During FY25 there were 12,273 items viewed on JSTOR. The digital archive currently maintains 27 digital collections, containing a total of 8,331 items. The archive added several physical collections this year, as well. Our most significant addition is the papers of Ronald Ansin, a local businessman and philanthropist. The archive also received the papers of former faculty members Ronald Colbert and Joshua Spero.

For the fourth consecutive year, the Center for Italian Culture has funded an archival assistant for CIC associated archival collections. This year, the archival assistant's work included building a digital collection documenting Fitchburg's historic Italian-American neighborhood known as 'The Patch'.

The archive awarded a Robert Cormier student assistantship during the spring semester. The student used the materials in the Cormier collection to analyze film adaptations of Cormier's novels, then created an award-winning presentation for this year's Undergraduate Research Conference.

The archive also researched and helped to mount two exhibits during 2024-2025: (1) Peter Reynolds exhibit, Fall 2024 & Spring 2025; Library 1st Floor, and (2) Women's History Month, Spring 2025; Library 1st Floor.

Usage

Books & Media

Our ebook usage was 21,718 checkouts in FY25. Print books had 1,095 checkouts in FY25. Both print and eBook checkouts showed substantial declines this year. More information about the usage of electronic collections is available in the Electronic Resources section of this report.

Technology Equipment

The library offers a technology lending library as part of our collection. Items from this collection were checked out 2,278 times in FY25, an increase of over 155% over the past 3 years. The most popular categories of equipment are chargers and wireless noise-canceling headphones. In FY25 the library purchased 8 new chromebook laptops, a Raspberry Pi kit, and additional cameras and microphones, all of which are available to students for checkout. A full list of items available in the technology lending library can be found here.

Course Reserves

We provided access to 562 course reserve items, including physical books, ebooks, equipment and anatomical models. Our controlled digital lending (CDL) initiative is centered in our course reserve service. Digital items were the most popular with 24/7 access, which often eliminates the financial investment of textbooks by students. We had a total of 5,984 reserve checkouts (physical & digital). Although our physical checkouts saw a 4.5% decrease (818 in FY24, 781 in FY25), our digital reserves saw a 373.3% increase (833 in FY24, 3,943 in FY25).

Study Rooms

Private study rooms are one of the most popular features of the library. Library users scheduled 8,155 reservations of library study rooms for a total of 14,140 hours of study room bookings.

Interlibrary Loan

In FY25 our community borrowed 1,950 (digital and physical) articles and books from other institutions to supplement our collection (a 19.7% increase from FY24). Additionally, the library lent a total of 4,259 items (digital and physical) to other institutions (a 21.2% increase from FY24).

Printing, Scanning, Copying

The library's 3 public-use RICOH machines continue to be popular. Our users printed over 167,000 pages from 6,818 copy jobs. Library staff solve equipment issues, educate users on how to use the machines and replenish supplies.

Assessment

The library continues to make progress on its assessment work outlined in its 2022-2026 Assessment Plan. Listed below are assessment projects accomplished during FY25:

- The library continuously reviews usage statistics of library resources, and uses these statistics to inform resource purchasing decisions.
- The Facilities assessment team spent FY25 preliminary planning for a library refresh. This included visiting recently renovated libraries to learn about new trends in space and furniture. Stephanie Walker, Library Dean at UMass Boston facilitated space discussions with library staff and created a library space plan with recommendations for changes to our existing library space.
- The team also continued collecting data on how the space and furniture is used. The booths on the main level and our study rooms are the most popular seating choice, although they often only have one person at a time using them.
- Upon receiving monies from the SUCCESS fund, the Facilities assessment team worked with Tucker Library Interior Solutions to purchase furniture that supports neurodivergent learners. Furniture should be installed by the end of September 2025.
- In response to a security incident, the Facilities Security group was established in AY24 with the goal of increasing our understanding of our space, utilizing security best practices and procedures. The Security group met during AY2025 to review existing library security literature, met with various campus departments to better understand the university's security infrastructure and developed 27 recommendations on how to improve security within the library. Implementation of the recommendations will begin in AY26.
- The website assessment team analyzed the data gathered through the website usability and has developed recommendations for website revisions to be implemented in AY26.
- The Research Team conducted a preliminary analysis of its Springshare subject guides to ensure that they are accessible and conform to the technical standards of Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.1 Level AA. This project will continue into AY26 with a review of all guides including course and topic guides.

Faculty Collaborations

Library Liaison Program

Librarian liaisons focused efforts on communication with academic departments in FY25. Following a meeting with the Library Advisory committee, Liaison Program Coordinators spearheaded the development of a faculty resources webpage on the Library's website. After reviewing a sample of faculty resource pages from other colleges and universities, the liaison program coordinators drafted a list of resources. With approval from the rest of the librarians, the webpage was finalized and made available for faculty to quickly find high use resources and services:

Academic Integrity

The Library Dean led the Student Success Task Force on reviewing and updating the university's current academic integrity policy and making recommendations for change, with the Strategic Projects Librarian playing a critical advisory role. The work this year focused on revising the policy and procedures based on ongoing community feedback. Key constituent groups consulted include the Student Government Association, peer tutors, graduate students, the registrar, faculty via a Faculty Professional Development Day session in January 2025, undergraduate chairs, and the Provost Council.

Community Read

A Woman of No Importance by Sonia Purnell

"A remarkable chronicle...this lively examination...shows how, if [Virginia] Hall had been a man, dropping undercover in and out of occupied Vichy, Paris, and Lyon, setting up safe houses, and coordinating couriers for the Resistance, she would now be as famous as James Bond...Meticulous research results in a significant biography of a trailblazer who now has a CIA building named after her."

—Kirkus Reviews

The Dean of the Library co-chaired the community read committee with a librarian from the Fitchburg Public Library. Programming included 8 community events including a talk by the author, Sonia Purnell:

- Community Read Book Discussion - November 6, 2024
- Writing Home to Fitchburg: A Reading of WWII Service Members' Letters @ Fitchburg Historical Society - November 7, 2024
- The Epic Story of Prosthetics - February 11, 2025
- Film Showing - February 18, 2025
- Book Club Brunch Discussion - March 17, 2025
- Virtual Book Club Discussion - March 19, 2025
- Author Event: Sonia Purnell - March 25, 2025
- Learning from WW2 Italian Era Anti-Fascist Rhetoric in the Age of Social Media - April 7, 2025

More about the book and events can be found on the Community Read Website.

Campus Outreach

Social media, specifically Facebook and Instagram, as well as the Library website news continued to be important messaging platforms for Library information, including changes in hours, new services and resources, and events. Additionally, our social media platforms provide a way to create a sense of community with photos that introduce followers to our staff and space.

- Welcome Back Library FAQ 2024— Series of posts over the course of September 2024 that provided quick answers to common questions about using the Library that students have at the beginning of the new academic year, such as what are the Library's hours, how to reserve a study room, and how to get research help.
- Banned Book Week 2024— Series of daily posts over the course of Banned Book Week (Sept. 22-28, 2024) highlighting information about the state of book challenges in the United States.

- The Women of Fitchburg State Normal School: Excerpts from the Class of 1897 Theses - In honor of Women's History Month, this series acted as a digital version of a physical exhibit of the same name that was on display in the Library in March 2025. The series included photos and excerpts of various Normal School graduates' theses.
- Monthly Book Displays - Each month a post highlighting the books that are featured both on physical and digital book displays. These displays typically celebrate a specific commemorative heritage month, such as Hispanic & Latinx/a/o Heritage Month (Sept-Oct.), Native American Heritage Month (Nov.), Black History Month (Feb.), and Pride Month (June).

Seed Library

Launched in Spring 2022, the Seed Library continues to be a popular resource for the FSU community. Designed to reduce barriers to gardening, promote food security, and biodiversity it offers free access to a wide variety of seeds. The seed library allows individuals to “borrow” seeds with the goal of planting, growing, and eventually harvesting new seeds to continue the cycle of sharing and sustainability. The Seed Library is located near the library’s main entrance. The seeds are organized alphabetically by plant name in a repurposed card catalog. Community members are invited to take only what they can realistically plant and tend. The collection has grown over the years to include over 100 seed varieties, ranging from common garden staples like tomatoes, peppers, squash, and beans to more unique plants such as edible flowers and herbal teas.
