A. Departmental Special Section for AY21-22

Department Lessons Learned and Accomplishments

Returning to campus teaching after a year and half of remote teaching has been energizing for both faculty and students. However, students appear to have been deeply affected by the pandemic as evidenced in the increased student success issues we have faced this year. Given the post-pandemic situation where students need more attention and support of instructors, we may embark on a department wide discussion of freshman writing courses in AY 22-23 to develop some future directions. We will also build on some of the findings of the HEIF grant which is aimed at empowering heritage languages, working with our new faculty hire who has ESL specialty. Our assessment results based on the two courses we evaluate for the common objectives of English Studies, we find that students meet the standards and show improvements from the sophomore to senior year.

We held a department retreat in the fall where we took up a number of curricular and student success issues. We are rewriting some course titles and descriptions to communicate our course content and learning outcomes better to students. We will continue to make improvements based on the program review in 2023.

This year, we have put in for two cross disciplinary academic innovation grants, one that will enhance the role and form of the college newspaper The Point while creating an interdisciplinary minor, and another that develops an TESL certificate aimed at middle and secondary education students. Our professional writing and literature courses have an active participation in the new Gen Ed program and we hope to build on these contributions in the coming years.

We have also placed two students on paid summer internships this year and hope to increase that number in the coming years. We also held an alumni panel for our students to showcase the career possibilities for English studies.

Graduate program: we launched our Online/Hyflex Graduate program this fall, with the hope of attracting more students to the program. We have worked with the graduate marketing division to develop marketing strategies and publicize the program. The program is 30 credits and has an exit exam or MA thesis option. This year we successfully graduated two students—one with an exit exam and another with an MA thesis. We hope to grow the program in the coming years.

Additionally, we are currently recruiting students in our Creating Writing Certificate program and will be offering courses next year.

II. PLO Assessment (Please report on the PLOs assessed and/or reviewed this year. Programs should be assessing at least one each year.)

Using the table below, list and briefly describe the direct method(s) used to collect information assessing whether students are learning the core sets of knowledge (K), skills (S) and attitudes (A) identified as essential.

| PLO # (from above) | Assessment description (exam, observation, national standardized exam, oral presentation with rubric, etc.) | When assessment was administered in student program (internship, 4 th year, 1 st year, etc.) | To which students were assessments administered (all, only a sample, etc.) | What is the target set for the PLO? (criteria for success) | Reflection on the results: How was the "loop closed"? |
|---------------------------------|---|--|--|---|--|
| 1. | Read, understand, use and cite primary texts (Objective 1) | ENGL 2999 (taken at end of sophomore year) and in Capstone (ENGL 4999 taken in senior year) | All | Please see the chart that follows: Assessed on a scale of NA, 1 (does not meet standard); 1.5 and 2 (meets standard); 2.5 and 3 (exceeds standard). | Generally, students have facility in using and engaging with primary texts. The score of 2.3 in the sophomore level class suggests that there is room for improvement but meets the standard. That score improves during their final year to 2.65, which suggests a trajectory of growth and improvement of literary analysis and writing. |
| 2. | Critically analyze primary texts across genres, | ENGL 2999 and ENGL 4999 | All | Assessed on a scale of NA, 1 | This is an ongoing challenge at the |

| | cultures, and periods using and citing secondary texts (Objective 2) | | | (does not meet standard); 1.5 and 2 (meets standard); 2.5 and 3 (exceeds standard). | sophomore level as the score of 1.86 indicates. Here, too, there is a dramatic improvement by the time students reach their senior year, with a score of 2.25. There is work to be done to improve their facility with secondary sources in general. |
|----|---|----------------------------|-----|--|--|
| 3. | Be able to critically analyze texts and contexts. (Objective 3) | ENGL 2999 and ENGL 4999 | All | Assessed on a scale of NA, 1 (does not meet standard); 1.5 and 2 (meets standard); 2.5 and 3 (exceeds standard). | In this area, student do well and meet the standards of engaging with primary texts in multilayered ways. Both the sophomore as well as senior scores—2.6 and 2.45 show a good skillset. |
| 4. | Be able to communicate their perspectives and ideas after engagement with texts. (Objective 4) | ENGL 2999 and ENGL 4999 | All | Assessed on a scale of NA, 1 (does not meet standard); 1.5 and 2 (meets standard); 2.5 and 3 (exceeds standard). | Students meet the standards generally, with scores above 2 in both classes, but this is an area that needs further bolstering. |

Still in a mode of recovering from the post-Covid work adjustments, the assessment committee could not review the fall 2021 Approaches class. That class was reviewed by the chair and two other faculty.

Summary of Findings: Briefly summarize the results of the PLO assessments reported in Section II above combined with other relevant evidence gathered and show how these are being reviewed/discussed. How are you "closing the loop"?

We used the rubric below:

For the Initial Licensure concentration, the process also involves 5-12 English Studies PASM group; practicum supervising teachers in 5-12 schools, as well as Secondary-Middle education faculty and determination of students' MTEL exams completion as per the state requirements. |
|---|--|
| What changes have been made as a result of using the data/evidence? (close the loop) | Changes over the last few years have been made so that we articulate more clearly and purposefully the goals of English studies in our entry-level "Approaches to English Studies," and also the importance of preparing and maintaining a Senior portfolio that captures the learning of our students over the years. (This was done in response to feedback from our external evaluator from our Program Review in 2017.) In "Approaches," students are given academic preparation in the form of introduction to theories, analytical and research methods to bring students into the discipline of English Studies. The course involves deep engagement with primary texts and a meaningful use of secondary sources, as well as frameworks for literary analysis. The other courses in the curriculum build on these initial frameworks of primary and secondary engagement throughout the four years of study. Capstone prepares students for professionalization, graduate work and employment in related fields to English. We continue build the career and jobs focus for our students by offering alumni panels and speakers who explore with students the range of possibilities and skills that they have acquired, developed and have as English Studies majors within our three concentrations. We also usually conduct a forum that addresses the process of preparing for graduate study which helps our students who are prospective candidates approach and complete the process of applying for advanced degree programs in literature, library science and law, but have not been able to do it this year, due to the post-Covid slow start. This year we have worked with career development services to place two students in paid summer internships to help build skills and experience. |

Graduate program: We offer a zero credit exit exam or the option of a Masters thesis as our capstone experience. Over the years we have successfully graduated many of our MA students with both these options. Last year we graduated two students, one with an Exit Exam and another with a Masters Thesis.

Yes

The Department Assessment plan follows the methodology discussed above where we use Approaches and Capstone courses as out assessment tools. We do have a more detailed draft of assessment plan from 2019 (see attachment) but we have yet to engage in a dept wide conversation about the use and value of that draft assessment plan.

 - o Revival of Route 2 (our English Studies journal produced in conjunction with the Editing and Publishing class)
 - o Continuing the work of the Davis Grant to define career competencies for students in all three concentrations as well as an action plan for the department. See attachment for the work this year.
 - o English Studies Rally for recruitment and in support of the English Studies major and minor
 - Continued development of the Graduate MA Program in Literature program around national and international marketing outreach with the new Hyflex/Online modality
 - o Graduate Certificate in Creative Writing Program implementation and marketing
- 2) Any other thoughts or information that you would like to share.
 - Please note that I am writing this document as Interim Chair and may not have addressed all areas comprehensively because of my limited knowledge and experience this semester.
