VIRTUAL SPRING CEREMONY

Celebrating our May 2020 Graduates

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Welcome to Fitchburg State University and the 124th annual spring commencement ceremony of the Class of 2020. This year due to the global pandemic and for safety reasons, we are celebrating student accomplishments virtually along with friends and family wherever they may be. The ceremony is delayed from the spring, because we held out hope that an in-person event eventually would be possible. Even though the event is now virtual, I know the hard work and sacrifices made to get to this day were very real. This is your day to shine!

As graduates you embody our university motto, perseverantia—perseverance. Commencement may signal a temporary end of your academic career, as you begin new chapters and meet new life challenges, but today I encourage you to take a moment and savor not only your accomplishment, but also the memories of all your time at Fitchburg State.

The graduates have not reached this milestone on their own. Let us also recognize the spouses, parents, family members, friends and loved ones who have provided the support and encouragement that made the graduates' success possible. If you are one of these participants today, I hope these exceptional students are inspiring a great deal of joy and family pride.

Graduates, your diploma represents your completion of a course of study, as well as a commitment to pursuing life and career goals. Your story is just beginning and we are honored that Fitchburg State provided you the path to this achievement.

In the years to come, I hope you will remain actively engaged with the university and help to shape the direction for future generations to come. As alumni, you are now part of our extended family worldwide. In times of crisis and times of triumph, we will find a way to be together, to be stronger despite any physical distances. Fitchburg State will always be your home.

Richard S. Lapidus
President

VALEDICTORIAN OF THE CLASS OF 2020

Stanley L. Choruzek

Stanley L. Choruzek is a U.S. Marine Corps veteran who enlisted as soon as he was old enough in order to join the War on Terror. When an injury during training kept him from being deployed, he turned his attention to being a full-time father while earning a college degree. He began studying liberal arts and appreciated the foundation of critical thinking it fostered.

The Worcester native graduated from Mount Wachusett Community College in 2017 and then attended Fitchburg State. In addition to his studies, he worked on campus for Information Technology. He also appreciated the diversity of students he met on campus, including fellow veterans.

Looking ahead, Choruzek sees parallels in the computer networks he helped support and the human networks that sustain all of us.

Choruzek hopes to transfer his new degree into a career in cybersecurity. His drive to serve and protect his fellow citizens has led him to the virtual front lines, where hackers try to interfere with social networks or elections.

GRADUATE STUDENT LEADERSHIP AWARD

Paul A. Thibodeau

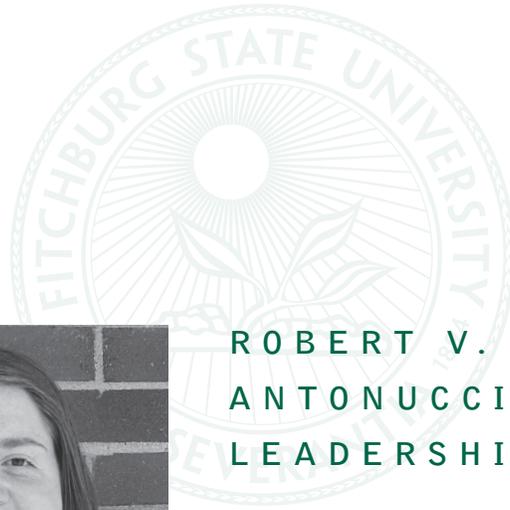

Paul A. Thibodeau has faced many challenges in his life but still considers himself blessed. After years of drug and alcohol addiction, Thibodeau got sober 25 years ago and is committed to helping others overcome their own challenges.

After completing his undergraduate degree in human services from Fitchburg State in 2015, Thibodeau continued his studies at the graduate level in the hopes of building a career in counseling. Those plans were interrupted after a horrific car crash in 2017 that shattered his femur and left him with a traumatic brain injury.

Despite those challenges, Thibodeau considers himself lucky. He believes he has survived so that he can help others overcome their own adversities.

In nominating Thibodeau for the graduate award, faculty members saluted his resilience and his commitment to continuing his studies, despite the challenges created by the accident – including delaying his graduation by a full year.

Thibodeau now works as a counselor for the Montachusett Opportunity Council and looks forward to getting his own license to practice.

2019 FACULTY EXCELLENCE AWARDS

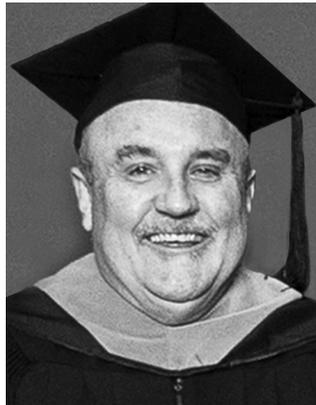

Dr. Vincent J. Mara Award for Excellence in Teaching

Dr. Randy P. Howe

Dr. Howe, Professor of Communications Media, received the Vincent J. Mara Excellence in Teaching Award, established in 1989 to honor former university President Mara (1976-1995). Howe is a previous department chair and a “double falcon,” having earned both his Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees from Fitchburg State before acquiring his EdD. He has taught graphic design, interface design, communication theory, educational leadership, and professional communications programs here for the last 21 years, and most recently led a unique inaugural marketing course onsite at the 2018 Edinburgh Fringe Festival in Scotland to help promote our students’ global theater performances.

Contributions to the Graduate Program Award

Mr. Joseph E. McAloon (awarded posthumously)

Professor “Joe” McAloon, who died suddenly in April 2019, is the recipient of the Contributions to the Graduate Program Award. He retired in 2018 after 35 years at Fitchburg State teaching business, advising students and evolving curriculum. He stayed on after his official retirement to teach part-time in the online MBA program and continue as its department chair, a position he held since 2008. Professor McAloon was committed to fostering students’ intellectual, creative, scholarly and professional growth. An eponymous full scholarship for the online MBA program was created this fall in his honor.

Faculty Award for Research and Scholarship

Dr. Kisha G. Tracy

Dr. Tracy, Associate Professor of English Studies, is the recipient of the Faculty Research and Scholarship Award. Tracy's research often examines why the Middle Ages are significant and makes important connections between the present and the past, particularly focusing on helping students explore these ideas. She is a published book author (Memory and Confession in Middle English Literature, Springer International Publishing AG, 2017), a co-founder of the online community The Lone Medievalist and a leader and global lecturer on cultural heritage and medieval disability studies.

Faculty Award for Service

Dr. Eric N. Budd

Dr. Budd, the Faculty Service Award recipient, is a Professor in the Economics, History and Political Science Department and a previous department chair. A PhD graduate of the University of Chicago, he has taught international politics here for 25 years. His service projects include helping found and direct multiple campus organizations, including Model U.N., the FSU Speaker Series and the Center for Conflict Studies. He also volunteers in his community and looks forward to leading one of our student study abroad programs this spring in Ireland. With this Service Award, Budd is the only professor to have earned three of the four faculty awards.

UNIVERSITY SYMBOLS

The university's colors are white, gold and green. White and gold were formally adopted in June 1900, and green was added in 1979. They signify wisdom, inspiration, purity and perfection. The school motto, also adopted in 1900, is Perseverantia. This Latin word was freely translated to mean "achievements brought about by quiet will."

The university flower, the saxifrage, exemplifies the motto. The saxifrage, a small white flower with a golden center, was often found growing through cracks of rocks in early spring. Tiny as the flower is, it appeared to be so strong it could break rocks, through its gentle perseverance, its ability to overcome difficulties in its growth from seed to fruition, from lower to higher, from darkness to light.

These triumphs parallel each individual's growth through education.

In 1900, the saxifrage was adopted as the original college seal. Its white flower petals were surrounded by a golden wreath of saxifrage leaves.

The seal has evolved along with the institution, most recently in 2010 with the attainment of university status. The saxifrage and the motto remain prominent in the design, though they are depicted with a clean, elegant, contemporary look. The current academic logo incorporates a multitude of visual symbols: a shield, a book, an abstract set of wings, and, finally, a subtle "F" in the negative space.

PRESIDENTIAL COLLAR

At formal academic occasions, the president of Fitchburg State University also wears the Presidential Collar. The links in the collar are engraved with the names of Fitchburg State's eleven presidents and years of service. The Presidential Medal, which incorporates the university seal, is suspended from the collar.

REGALIA

The origins of academic dress lie uncertainly in 13th century England, when Edward III granted a charter to the University of Oxford. A close connection between the university and the church (the chancellor was the bishop's representative) may explain why illustrations depict the members of Oxford wearing gowns resembling clerical cassocks—closed in front and reaching the ground all around. Like the more lavishly trimmed ecclesiastical vestments, costume for advanced degrees was more elaborate.

A more practical reason than religious concurrence may have also prompted the adoption of long gowns. The buildings frequented by medieval scholars were cold and often damp, and so robes (particularly with hoods to protect tonsured heads) may have been worn more for warmth than fashion. The distinctive gown nevertheless set the student apart from his fellow citizens. As late as the Civil War, students at American universities wore caps and gowns daily while in residence. Whatever the origin, academic regalia grew in diversity and splendor, with scholars displaying distinctive costumes for different occasions and achievements. The result was a bewildering variety of designs.

An intercollegiate commission met at Columbia University in 1894 to establish a standard academic costume code, and over the years it has been revised by an official committee of the American Council on Education. The committee's prescriptions, while regulating, still allow for great pageantry at formal academic events.

From the cap, gown and hood it is possible to distinguish the institution from which the wearer was graduated, the field of learning in which the degree was earned, and the level of the degree—bachelor, master, or doctoral.

The distinguishing feature of the black mortarboard cap, standard at most colleges and universities in the United States, is the color of the tassel—black for the holder of a bachelor's or master's degree, gold for a doctor's degree or the governing officers of educational institutions. A few institutions have soft velvet tams instead.

The gown is normally black, and the gown's cut and trim indicate the level of the degree held. The bachelor's has long, pointed sleeves, while the master's has oblong sleeves, open at the wrist, with the front part cut in an arc. The doctor's sleeves are bell-shaped, with three bars of velvet, and the gown is trimmed with velvet down the front as well.

The hood tells the most about the wearer. The length of the hood and width of the binding vary according to degree. The hood is lined with the official colors of the college (Fitchburg State University's colors are white, gold, and green). The color of the hood's binding indicates the area of study in which the degree was granted.

HISTORY

Established in 1894 by an act of the Massachusetts Legislature, the State Normal School in Fitchburg opened in temporary quarters in the old high school building on Academy Street. Principal John G. Thompson, aided by a teaching staff of three, implemented a two-year teacher training program for women that had forty-six participants. In December 1896, the school expanded into a new building, known as Thompson Hall, and set up the State Schools of Observation and Practice in city buildings on Day Street and Highland Avenue.

In the next decade the school was a trendsetter for programs in Education. The Edgerly School opened, originally as an eighth-grade model and practice school, and then in 1910, it became one of the first junior high schools in the United States. The following year the school initiated the first practical arts teacher training course in the country for men.

In 1930, the State Normal School was authorized to offer a bachelor's degree in practical arts, and in 1932, when it became the State Teachers College at Fitchburg, four-year degrees were offered in all areas of education.

Under the auspices of the State Division of University Extension, summer courses were first offered in 1915, marking the beginning of the college's commitment to Continuing Education programs. In 1935, the college was also authorized to establish graduate programs and in 1954 the first evening courses were offered.

In 1960, the college changed its name and expanded its mission. The State College at Fitchburg diversified its programs to include degrees in disciplines other than education. In 1965, its name was officially changed to Fitchburg State College, which today offers forty-nine undergraduate degree programs in eighteen academic departments, twenty Masters Degree programs, five Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study programs, and seven Graduate Certificate programs. Enrollment is up to 3,100 full-time and 4,000 part-time students, which include 1,100 matriculated graduate students. The campus has expanded from a single structure on High Street to thirty-two buildings on ninety acres, becoming the educational center for the Montachusett region. The college proudly offers traditional and nontraditional programs to serve the educational needs of its students as undergraduate, graduate, and continuing education students.

On July 28, 2010, Gov. Deval L. Patrick signed legislation establishing a State University system in Massachusetts, and the institution's current name—Fitchburg State University—was enacted.
